INVITING DISEASE.

A Case-Pool to be Opened Into the Big Ohio Sewer.

Should the Asiatic cholera, which is now raging in several of the countries across the water, ever reach America, there is certainly no more inviting spot for it to settle down to do business, in conjunction with the grim reaper, than in Pittsburgh, since there are several communities, which no virulent diseases, thriving only in filth, could pass over without resting. One of the most glaring cess-pools to be found in Allegheny county, if not in the entire state, is that portion of the Monongahela and Ohio rivers between the Davis island dam and lock No. 1, as the imprisoned water is already thick and sluggish with refuse.

Upon inquiry yesterday it was found that the wickets at the Davis island dam had not been lowered since the morning of July 11, having now been up forty-nine days, which is the longest period in the history of the dam. What is still worse the wickets were down only for a period of eight days previous to the last raising, and this time was not nearly sufficient to allow the river bed to become cleansed, as the gates had been up for quite a period previous to July 3, when they were first lowered. To say that the condition of the water in the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers at present is something awful, is putting it but mildly, as it is unprecedented in the history of Pittsburgh, but the Monongahela stands head and shoulders above its oil-bosomed sister in the matter of filth. A Commercial Gazette reporter yesterday afternoon paid a visit to the different wharves and went along the river bank, to verify the claims made by many rivermen that the present condition of the water was well calculated to invite a visit from typhoid fever, smallpox, or even cholera, and found the condition of affairs even worse than had been represented.

The Monongahela wharf is littered with dirt and garbage, which has been baked hard by the fierce rays of the sun, but the piles of dirt are no doubt as full of disease germs as were Pittsburgh's dirt piles in 1843, and they await only the softening influence of a warm rain to new life. The water in the Monongahela river is of the consistency of soup and very dark colored, giving off an odor that is decidedly unpleasant to one unaccustomed to it. This nauseating smell is particularly noticeable on one standing in the middle of the Smithfield street bridge while a steamboat passes, as the paddle-wheels seem to stir the heavy water clear to the river bottom.

A visit was paid to the wharf boats where a closer inspection of the water could be made, and the reporter, in trying to see the river bed, could see only a soft, oozy bed of black mud instead of the usual bed of cobble stones. A stick was thrust down to the bed of the river and when withdrawn was covered with a coating of black filth usually found in a swamp, while the death-dealing dirt, having been disturbed and loosed from its rocky bed, rose partly to the surface as if in half-hearted protestation, and then slowly settled again.

New York, August 29.—Money on call easy at 2 1/2 per cent. Prime mercantile paper 4 1/2 per cent. Sterling exchange quiet but firm at 84 1/2.

The bank statement issued to-day, while having little or no effect as the time of issue, upon further study shows that the funds of the banks are being depleted at a rapid rate, and borrowers are now looking for an almost certain advance in money rates in the face. This condition was the result of the extreme dullness in the general market and special activity accompanied by falling quotations in the few stocks in which there was some demand.
